

Earrings were worn only by women with pierced ears. Clip and screw-on earring had not yet been developed. If you don't have pierced ears, don't wear earrings. If you do have pierced ears, wear drop earrings, filigree earrings, small hoops, and studs. Some women wore pearl or bead necklaces.

Leggings:

Leggings were worn with short skirts and bloomers for sports activities and were made of jersey in black, blue, tan, light or dark gray.

Sunshades:

Japanese sunshades were popular accessories on outings.

Parasols:

Popular with the fashionable woman for carriage drives, walking, and visiting. They had long handles and spines and were covered with plain or figured cotton or silk, and trimmed with flounces of fabric or lace. The handle was trimmed with pompoms or a bow.

Bags:

Leather or velvet bags with metal frames; metal mesh purses. Since many women had large pockets in their skirts, they didn't always carry purses.

yards of material fifty-four inches in width. In making of two materials, as represented in the illustration, five and three-quarters yards forty, with two yards of twenty-two and nine yards of wide and narrow braid respectively will be necessary.

Camel's-hair chevrot, cloth and homespun are excellent fabrics for making, and the most pleasing colors are blue, brown, steel gray or black; any neutral shade may be chosen. Glaring effects are to be avoided, as they are neither durable nor suitable.

LADIES' DIVIDED SKIRT BLOOMERS. (USED FOR BICYCLING, MOUNTAIN CLIMBING AND CROSS SADDLE RIDING.)

No. 2145 — We here portray a comfortable and almost indispensable adjunct of the outing wardrobe. These bloomers will be worn with any of the blouse waists and also with the reefer and sack coats usually worn when bicycling. Gray flannel was used in the making as shown in this illustration, but navy blue, brown or black will be much used and chevrot, serge, camel's-hair and similar fabrics are suitable for making, also checked woolen materials. The left view shows the skirt gathered above the ankle with an elastic which is run through a casing on the inside and is invisible when the skirt

the frill finish preferred by many. The pattern is cut in six sizes for ladies from twenty to thirty inches waist measure, and costs 20 cents. To make for a lady of medium size it will require six yards of twenty-seven, or three and five-eighths yards of material forty-four or fifty-four inches in width.

OUTING GOWNS (6.24.1893, p. 509). Some outing gowns for yachting, boating, and tennis are from models furnished by the courtesy of Messrs. Redfern. Duck, sacking and serge are the materials. The familiar jackets and blazers with shirt waist or waistcoat prevail. The skirts of these dresses are about four yards wide, with gored front and side breadths and full back, or else they have a single seam, that in the back, and are circular in shape. Large sleeves and wide collars like capes give a new finish to gowns made last year. Fig. a: a blazer suit pretty for either land or sea is of white serge with rows of tubular braid, or merely a finish of stitching. Fig. b: for a patriotic yachswoman is a gown of red, white and blue serge that may serve for a Fourth of July dinner dress at sea. Fig. c: a tennis gown of white hop-sacking is trimmed with bias folds of ombré surah in which red prevails. Fig. d: a white duck dress for tennis or for hot days at sea is braided with navy blue, and widely bound with blue dungaree. ## FASHIONABLE HATS.

(For Illustrations see Pages 297 and 298.)

The modish woman who deems the small chapeau more stylish

and dressy than the large shape has both the toque and plateau to choose from, and if the toque prove less of a favorite than formerly, because she has worn it so long, she may assume the jaunty plateau with perfect satisfaction, both shapes, though so widely different in outline, suiting the same types.

Large hats always receive their share of admiration and admit of various arrangements of trimming. The chapeau upon which a floral garniture does not appear is rather the exception than the rule, and one might almost imagine the pretty, bright blooms to be growing on some hats, so natural-looking are they.

FIGURE NO. 1.—LADIES' TURBAN.—Though this shape be too severe for some faces, it is stylish when becoming. A band of black ostrich feathers surrounds the base of the rather high, square crown of black chip, and a black velvet facing is applied to the deep brim, gilt stars being placed on it, with decorative effect. A bow of wide black ribbon is placed a little to the side back of the crown, and above it stand a yellow rose and leaves. Cog feathers may be used tastefully in place of the ribbon and power.

edge, with becoming effect. At the back are two great bows of wide emerald-green grosgrain ribbon, and between the bows stands an American beauty rose with its foliage. If desired, a smaller rose and leaves may be placed in front, the additional garniture being in good taste. The hat may accompany a light wool or figured China silk gown, and is adapted to visiting purposes.

(For Descriptions of Figures Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6, see "Fashionable Hats," on Pages 297 and 298.)
